

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

should be enforced by suit at the instance of the receivers, after disposing of all other assets of the insolvent bank.

Sunday Travel—Injury to Passenger—Liability of Carrier.—Horton et ux. v. Norwalk Tramway Co., 33 Atl. Rep. 914 (Ct.). Plaintiff was injured while riding for pleasure on Sunday, and defendants claimed that only nominal damages could be recovered as the injury arose in the performance of an illegal contract, but the Court held that the general statutes of the State construed with the later public acts, did not prohibit Sunday travel to such an extent as to exempt carrier from liability for injury to passenger.

Eminent Domain—Measure of Damages for Street—Easement.—In re opening One Hundred and Sixteenth street, 37 N. Y. Sup. 508. On a question as to whether the correct principle was adopted in making award to property owners of a full value of land taken for street purposes subject to no easement public or private, it was held that the measure of damages to the owner of the fee for land taken for such purposes, which is subject to an easement, is its value subject to the easement.

Limitation of Actions—Personal Privilege.—Lewis v. Buckley, 19 Southern Reporter, 197 (Miss.). The appellant, while testifying in the court below, said, referring to the statute of limitations: "I never pleaded it in any case before and I do not plead it in this case." The court held that he had clearly withdrawn the defence; that no consideration was required for the withdrawal of a plea of this kind, and that the issue could not be further considered.

Insolvent National Bank—Distribution of Assets.—Davis v. Elmira Sav. Bank, 16 Supreme Court Rep. 502. By this decision the rule long adhered to in New York State giving banks a preference in the distribution of assets of an insolvent bank is held to be in conflict with the Federal Statute requiring the assets of an insolvent national bank to be distributed ratably among the creditors.

Notice—Indictment for Selling Intoxicating Liquor—Local Option Law.—Lowery v. State, 34 S. W. Rep. 956 (Tex.). Where a county passed local option laws, and a person was charged with selling liquor by an indictment which simply set up the fact that he had sold and given away liquor unlawfully, such indictment was held fatally defective, as the courts cannot notice judicially